Requesting baptism, marriage or burial records

If you are looking for a baptism, marriage or burial, please be sure to provide your name and contact information (e-mail, mailing address, or phone number), as well as:

1. The full first and last name of the individual(s) in the record – name at birth, for marriages and baptisms.
2. The location (e.g. city or town) where the baptism, marriage or burial took place.
3. The name of the church or other site (e.g. town hall) in that location where the ceremony took place.
4. The date of the baptism, marriage or burial – approximate year, if necessary.
5. Your relationship to the individual(s) in question (e.g. great-grandchild, aunt, sibling).
6. The purpose of your inquiry (e.g. family history, passport, research for a book).

Please note that requests for baptism, marriage and burial information and certified transcripts generally take at least 2 to 3 weeks to be completed.

About the registers

- Church registers record events (e.g. baptisms), in order of date. The records are not indexed by person, so we cannot conduct speculative searches based on names alone.
- Many registers are tied to specific churches, especially in larger centres – cities like Moose Jaw, Regina and Saskatoon have far too many registers to allow us to effectively search each one, so please try to figure out what church was affiliated with the event.
- If you are not sure of the precise church but you know the name of the minister who performed the ceremony, we may still be able to identify the register that was used.

Personal information and church registers

Not all records are open to the public. In keeping with privacy policies and legislation, access is limited for certain archival records – this includes most baptism, marriage and burial registers created from 1925 onwards.
